The following article was contributed by Mrs. S. C. Davis to Honus:

At 10 o'clock the boys of the Nevada Cavalry marched through the Court and into a reception room of the Palace. Here they were met by Mr. Newlands and many friends and were decorated with flowers. After depositing their guns upon the floor they formed in line and filed into the Maple room and took their places about the tables, which looked most attractive, decorated with ferns and chrysanthemums and further brightened by candelabra. Plates were laid for 70 and a few more chairs were brought in. Mr. Newlands, Gov. Sadler, Lieut. Gov. Judge, Major Geary, Mr. Sharon, Capt. Linscott and one or two others were at the head of the two long tables. At each plate was a comfortable appetizer, so that all joined in Mr. Newlands' toast: "A welcome to the Nevada Cavalry." The Congressman then made a short and hearty speech of welcome, followed by Governor Sadler, Lieutenant-Governor Judge and Major Geary. The Major spoke in the highest terms of the bravery and soldierly bearing of our boys. He said, "no better soldiers ever went to Manila" and many other equally complimentary things. In fact his greeting was most cordial and inspiring. Capt. Linscott responded feelingly in behalf of the troop.

The boys then fell upon the breakfast. The various dishes of bouillon, omelet, steak, fried chicken, waffles and pies were perfect and the boys hungry.

Music furnished a pleasant accompaniment to the rattle of knives and forks.

More speeches followed, then a flashlight picture and after lusty cheers for everybody they were soon equipped for camp. This is the only troop which has been furnished with horses to reach the Presidio or given a breakfast at the Palace. Nevada is always lavish in her generosity.

The guests were Gov. Sadler, Lieutenant-Governor Judge and wife, Mrs. H. J. Sadler of Eureka, Mrs. Sam Davis, representing the Nevada Red Cross Society; Mrs. Linscott, Frank Boskowitz, Miss Kind, T. H. Chedie and wife, Mrs. M. T. Zeigler, of Wadsworth, Miss Lucy P. Keck, Mrs. Dr. Leonard of Reno, Mrs. Lydia Adams-James Mayberry, D. W. Perley and Mrs. E. Burns, formerly of Virginia City. The sumptuous breakfast was given by Congressman Newlands. C. C. Wallace of Eureka, Nev., was also a guest at the breakfast.

Forest Preservation

The intimate connection between water supply of streams and for at preservation is becoming realized at home by even Eastern people where irrigation is not necessary. Governor Stone, of Pennsylvania, has determined to make forest protection one of the features of his administration. A commission appointed by him will select and locate three State forest reservations aggregating 120,000 acres at the headwaters of rivers of the State. The State authorities are deeply interested in the subject and declare that obtaining these lands is Pennsylvania's one hope of preserving its agricultural and farming interests as well as its water supply.

When a State like Pennsylvania takes a stand on this issue it is time for the West, where irrigation is dollars and cents, to awaken from its slumbers and look to its source of water supply, and the past few years has demonstrated that the water shed has in a measure been ruined by the timber hogs.

On the headwater of the Truckee river in a few years there will be a splendid example of wholesale destruction of timber growth and the Truckee river farmers will be short of water, from the fact that the natural shed is destroyed. In this section the hills are getting well cleaned out of the original growth of timber and the owners of timber land are destroying the second growth, which will forever destroy the natural timber on the lands.

The State of Nevada should take some means of protection at the next meeting of the Legislature and fix a fine on the cutting of second growth timber up to a certain size. It is the only means of preserving the forest growth, and without forests there will be no water.
